He is a lunatic, can neither hear nor speak, and at the time the police took charge of him, he was wandering about the streets alone, barefooted and bareheaded. It is said he lives about four miles from town on the Murfreesboro pike. His friends should look after him.

Splendid Desk. Jesse Warren has just completed and set up in Wheeler, Marshall & Bruce's bookstore, a magnificent desk, which cost about $200, and is probably the most complete and convenient desk in the city.

It was so large that considerable difficulty was experienced in getting it into the building. About twenty-five public spirited patriots stood around with their hands in their pockets salving the haif dozen who had hold of the desk, as to the best way of accomplishing their object, and the result accomplishing their object, and the result was the desk was finally placed in position.

Beath of Barney Hines. Barney Hines, Esq , a well known citizen of the 13th district of this county, died yesterday morning after a protracted illnesss of several months. He was one of our best known Irish citizens, and withal a generous-'earted and esteemed gentleman. He has been a resident here for many years past, and by his enterprise and untiring labor, he accumulated a very handsome property. There was not a more prominent man in his district, and for a long time past he has been able to controlall elections which came efore the people. He was elected a Justice of the Peace, and also School Commissioner for his district, holding both positions at the time of his death. He took a lively interest in school matters, and the successfully managed schools which have made so much reputation for the 13th district, were in a great measure made so by his exertions in behalf of the same. He died of consumption, his last moments being as peaceful as that of a sleeping child. Ales, poor Barney! his place will not be Brooklyn Argus: Mrs. Jay Cooke displays true heroism. She promptly relinquishes her dower right to meet the pecuniary liabilities of her husband. n Cincinnati the other day, illustrates the beauties of suspension as a permanent olicy. A poor man called at a private banking office, and presented his check for $300, his balance. The banker in tantly paid it, in that free and essy manner which has been established in that city; that is, he wrote the word "good" and his name across the face. The poor man objected that that would do him no good; that he was in urgent need of the money, which made the banker smile with great amusement. The poor man turned sadly away, but before he had closed the door, the banker beckoned him back. He "guessed he could let him have the money at a premium of two per cert." When it is considered that it was the depesitor's money that he was thus offering to sell him at two per cent premium, one is moved to lift one's hat in token of respect to the financial genius of Cincinnati.

POLICE PICKINGS.

David Wilson is one of those individuals whose early moral training was sadly neg-lected, hence when his feelings become thoroughly aroused, and his passions excited, he relieves his mind by the free use of anguage which never figures in polite society. For thus doing last Wednesday, he was fined $2.50 yesterday morning.

The Chapman Sisters Arrangements have been made for a three night's engagement of the Chapman sisters at the Opera House next week, beginning with Thurs ay night. Of this troupe the Pittsburg Dispatch says: If the buriesque drama were always represented by such charming young ladies as the Misses Chapman, there would be little objection to i's holding a permanent place upon the stage. They enter into the spirit of it with such unaffected gayety and elasticity, and with such winsome heartliness that the audience feel themselves part and parcel of the fun ous sayings that everybody saw had not been prepared, puppet like, to order. Miss Ella, with her songs and dances, received a great deal of applause, and Miss Blanche was not behind the others in public esteem, and was the recipient of many marks of favor. Rules and Regulations for Parcon Applications.

The large number of convicts in the State Prison, and the increasing demands for Executive elemency, render, the exercise of that high prerogative, more than ever, a very delicate and difficult duty. The applications are generally ex parte—instigated by parties deeply interested, either from ties of relationship or less meritorious reasons, and often supported by strong personal appeals to the Executive. In a majority of cases his difficult to determine whether the case is a meritorious one. A proper presentation of the other side of the question would protect reciety, and at the same time do no injustice to the convict. Under a well-settled conviction that had men are sometimes returned to society by the honest exercise of the pardoning power, upon ex parte misrepthe pardoning power, upon ex parte misrep resentations of facts, I feel constrained from a high sense of public duty, to publish the following rules, (which have generally been acted upon,) for the information of parties who may otherwise make fruitiess efforts and perform expensive journeys to the Capitol without results:

Mrs. M. E. Little, J. McCarsen, Thou Kelly, Richard Paine, Mariam Cleme H. Lewhemeyer, Charles Porter, Dan S livau, Mary Hannegan, Dan Hayden, J Klotz, A. V. Wagner, H. Mackelmoor. 1. The application must, in all cases, be in writing, stating specifically the merits of the case and the reasons why the convict should be pardoned. 2. If the evidence on the final trial, was reduced to writing, it must accompany the petitions; as well as a certified copy of the indictment and judgment of conviction.

3. While every citizen will be respectfully and patiently heard, in any verbal statement of the merits or demerits of any pendment of the merits or dements of any pend-ing application for pardon, yet, no repre-sentation of facts, or appeals for clemency, will have any influence, for or against the application, nor will they be considered or weighed, until reduced to writing, and signed by the party making them. (Section 5263 of the Code.) Provided, "He (the Governor) shall cause to be entered in a book, kept for that purpose, his reasons for granting pardons, or commutating punish-ment, and preserve on file all documents the General Assembly when called on." This provision cannot be fully met by any 4. When the evidence upon which the prisoner was convicted is not furnished, the papers will be referred to the Attorney deneral of the district in which the appl cant was convicted, before any final action is taken. 5. Such other terms and conditions will be imposed as each case may appear to merit. The pardoning power having been in no respect abrided, qualified or changed, by the lease of the State Prison, the lessees have no voice in any application for pardon and they have not been in the past, and will not in the future be consulted in any case, nor will the wish, desire or interest of the lessees control in the least degree any application for pardon. The prisoner's conduct (which will always be considered) is recorded by the Warden, and furnished officially to this office, upon application.

These rules will be adhered to rigidly and all parties are admonished that the merits of each case as disclosed by properly authenticated documents will control its Therefore the employment of agents or attorneys to prosecute pardon—applications

Not one hand-loom is .o be seen in our town. It takes a sma'l capital to set up hand-looms-to make a pair of them $15 or less is sufficient. Let our wholesale dry goods men start these looms at an expenditure of $1,500, and a healthy activity will and never think of criticizing the play for absurdities or the players for lack of great is no question that the trade of Nashvil'e soon be apparent in their working. There histrionic abilities. And better still with all | alone would employ 5,000 weavers. There their coquetry and sprightliness they retain a are thousands of varieties of cloth personal respect which must always inspire | which are woven in hand-homs, jand deference and esteem. Their humor, too, is spontaneous and of all kinds, in each of which species may from the time the curtain went up until it | be reckoned a thousand different patterns, fell there was a constant stream of vivaci- and none of these can be wrought in power looms. Here there can be no competition between power operatives and hand operatives, because the latter can do what the fermer cannot. I do not mean to decry machinery, but only to say that there is a limit to its capabilities. Where it can produes one grade of goods, there is a demand for many grades. Hand-looms are adapted to the manufacture of every species of textile fabrics. Their construction is easy and cheap, while machinery for working any textile fabr'c above a four leaf twill, is costly and difficult to change. A hand-loom can be altered from one pattern to another in the space of ten minutes, without any change of gearing. It is this ease of a aptation, this facility of production from the simplest to the most complicated fabrics, that render hand-looms a necessity to a city that would pretend to manufacture textile goods. Machinery is in its nature confined to certain inflexible kinds of operations and cannot be made to produce nearly all the varieties of goods that are in common use. A few hundred hand looms, put in operation in Nashville, would draw in many trades: carpenters, blacksmiths, picker, shuttle, reed and pedal makers. The manufacture of cigars requires only about $600 to begin with. A dex rous band, by close application to his business, can grow up step by step and secure his fortune and position among men. Three hundred cigar makers in Nashville could bardly supply the demand of the State of Tennessee. To keep five cigarmakers working, one stripper is needed, and to keep ten busy, one swift hand is necessary to pack the cigars tastily in boxes. In close connection with this business, a box and ornamented label establishment would spring up; one trade gives rise to another. In the East many girls are employed to make low priced cigars and farnish boxes, and their bonest earnings amount to eight and ten dollars a week, when they are expert hands, which they soon become. Every cigar maker in working off Havana and Connecticut tobacco, earns from $15 to $20 and $30 per week. $8 per week. A good packer makes $15 per week. their workpaid off promptly are every Saturday, and the whole amount of their wages is immense. Nashville has only one or two small factories. In St. Louis, Chicag , Cincinnati and other stirring cities east and west-they make their own cigars. But our wholesale and retail cigar merchants, who are not practical cigar makers, run to New York or Cincinnati so ne to Louisville, to perchase their cigars and offer them here for sale. They benefit those cities annually with nearly a half million dollars. Nashville is robbed of this

WHEN Andrew Jackson was President be discovered that the United States Bank was in a rotten condition, and he at once removed the public deposits and saved the people's money. President Grant, finding Jay Cooke's national bank in a failing condition, at once withdrew his $40,000 and had it sent elsewhere in a tin box, but paid no attention to the $1-7,000 of public funds deposited in that institution. He gave no thought of the people's money, of which he is a trustee, but thought only of securing his own dollars. This is only one example of his entire official career. He is for self, first, foremost, and all the time.- New York World.

An enthusiastic depositor in the National Bank of Dubuque, which closed its doors a few days since in consequence of the discovery of defalcations by the President and Treasurer for an amount exceeding $350,-000, went into the establishment last week, and, presenting a pistol at the cashier's head, demanded his money or his (the cashier's blood. He got neither, however, and was lodged in jail, while the cashier was furnished with a body-guard.
